NEW SEWAGE PLANT PROPOSALS MADE BY GREENBRIAR DEVELOPER

Expressing disappointment at the position taken by county health officer Dr. Perry Stearns in opposition to the Greenbriar temporary sewage treatment plant, developer Alan Kay was hopeful that the county will still consider his latest proposals.

At a meeting with Dr. Stearns on Tuesday, Feb. 22, Kay said that he was ready to pipe the effluent to a point outside the Greenbelt city limits where the receiving stream is no longer intermittent. He also said that the plant will have monthly tests of virus cultures so as to make certain of virus removal from the effluent.

Kay left with Stearns an "inch-thick" document of specifications which incorporated not only these latest proposals but also the conditions stipulated by Stearns in his letter of Feb. 14 as necessary if the plant is to "present a minimum danger to public health."

Among the latter were:

a) That no by-pass mechanism would allow untreated sewage to by-pass the plant in times of overload.

b) That excess chlorine be removed from the effluent after adequate contact time has elapsed to effect the disinfection proposed by Dr. Cookson.

c) That multi-media filters, similar to those used at the Lake Tahoe plant, be required.

d) That there should be a meter to constantly record the flow of sewage into the plant.

e) That a pre-set limit to the number of connections be established and strict adherence to this limit enforced.

f) That a large surge tank be included to equalize the flow into the plant so that flow through the treatment process during peak hours of use would approximate the flow during low usage periods.

g) That recycling capability be built into the plant so that if any unit of the plant falls below the expected standard of treatment, the sewage can be sent back through the plant to insure proper treatment.

h) That a double, completely independent, power supply should be required.

i) That the plant should be run by WSSC using a trained and experienced maintenance crew.

j) That the method of sludge disposal should be clearly outlined.

k) That the plant should be closed as soon as public sewage facilities become available.

Kay said that in addition he will abide by the requirements eventually laid down by the State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. He regretted that he was unable to meet with Stearns prior to the issuance of his Feb. 14 letter to the county, but Stearns had been ill.

The county council has placed the Greenbriar sewage plant on its agenda for Tuesday, March 7, at Upper Marlboro. At that time it will consider CB-45, an amendment to the County's Ten-Year Water and Sewer Plan that would permit the use and installation of a temporary sewage treatment plant for the Greenbriar and Glen Ora apartment projects.

Snowstorm Causes Electrical Blackout

Saturday's snow storm blacked out a substantial part of Greenbelt when a falling tree and broken branches knocked down electrical wires in various places. Lights were out in the municipal center for about three hours during the afternoon, City Manager James K. Giese reported, cutting off power to the Municipal Building and to nearby apartments.

At the water tower, where police radio antenna is located, power was cut off when a tree was blown down in the high winds. Two emergency generators, maintained to provide service to police radios, were both put into use, Giese reported.

Some sections of the city's north end were also without power for almost two hours, as a result of falling branches, and Lakewood power was cut off for about 15 minutes.

Outside of Greenbelt, the south side of Greenbelt Rd., including the Giant food store and several gas stations, was without electricity during part of the afternoon.

The snow which covered the ground early Friday morning put a damper on the city's paper collection. What papers were set out — something less than two tons' worth — were collected.

Despite heavy winds, the snow removal program within Greenbelt was not unduly difficult, Giese noted. Some salting was necessary on Thursday, but rain on Friday washed away the night's snowfall. On Saturday city crews, numbering eight men, plowed streets, beginning at 7 a.m. and continuing until 6 p.m. Salt trucks then went out from 6 until 11 p.m. to counteract the effects of a fast freeze.

Parks crew members shoveled walks and pathways during the day.

PRAB Recommendations

by Roberta McNamara

Calm productivity characterized the Feb. 14 meeting of PRAB conducted by Joe O'Loughlin and attended by board members Hugh Jascourt, Nancy Neupert, Joe Wilkinson, Sandra Bracken, Larry Noel, Gerald Russ; John Churchill left early for another meeting. The board planned to advise city council to strengthen the issuance of permits for picnickers by providing specific places for picnics, requiring permits for groups of 15 but not more than 75. They also suggested the city develop a standard permit policy for all city facilities.

PRAB also planned to advise the city to maintain the Valley Stream Play Area between Woodland Hills and Lakewood and to advise city to discuss with the school board joint use of F D R High School for recreation. PRAB heard Boxwood's proposal for the lake park, and set March 9 for next hearing. PRAB planned to inform city council of College Park's attempt to build a county ice rink in their jurisdiction, and to suggest council consider a joint cost-sharing plan to insure use for Greenbelt.

COUNCIL UNITED AT LAST

Threat of Amusement Park For Greenbelt Regional Park Mobilizes City Officials

by Al Skolnik

With less than 24 hours notice, the Greenbelt city council mustered its forces Thursday and Friday to combat a shocking proposal for a swap of land between the National Park Service and the owners of Marshall Hall amusement park that would make available a portion of the Greenbelt Regional Park for private development.

The proposal had surfaced at a hearing of Senator Alan Bible's Subcommittee on Parks and Recreation of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee on Thursday, but city officials did not receive word of the matter until notified by Congressman Larry Hogan late that afternoon.

Mayor Richard Pilski immediately sent telegrams to Senator Bible, to Secretary of Interior Rogers C. B. Morton, and to National Park Service Director George B. Hartzog, Jr., opposing any exchange of land until local officials could be heard.

Learning that the Senate Subcommittee was holding further hearings on Friday, Mayor Pro Tem Charles F. Schwan, councilwomen Elizabeth Maffay and Rhea Cohen, and city manager James K. Giese attended the hearing to register a strong protest.

Proposal Dropped

However, their testimony was not needed. Department of Interior officials had already informed the Senator's Subcommittee that they were opposed to the National Park Service proposal.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior Nathaniel Reed, appearing at the hearing on behalf of Secretary Morton, told the Subcommittee that the Department was vehemently opposed to any action that would give away part of the Greenbelt Regional Park.

Senator Bible then turned to the Greenbelt contingent to say that their testimony was not needed as his Subcommittee was not going to go against the wishes of the Secretary of the Interior. The proposal, he said, would not be considered.

Mayor Pro Tem Schwan requested that Greenbelt be notified and given an opportunity to testify if the proposal were revived. Bible assured him that this would be done. Congressional approval is needed for the land trade.

Background

The proposal originated in efforts by the National Park Service and the owner of the Marshall Hall amusement park, Joseph I. Goldstein, to reach an agreement whereby the Federal Government would be able to take over the amusement park and include it in the Piscataway National Park. The amusement park had been a continuing source of controversy, prompted largely by a Goldstein plan to expand the amusement park into a Disney-type facility and by National Park Service efforts to acquire the land across from Mount Vernon to prevent commercial development and to keep the vista somewhat as it might have been during colonial times.

Under the tentative agreement worked out on Feb. 4, the Federal Government would have given Goldstein 395 acres of the Greenbelt Regional Park in exchange for 291 acres located along the Potomac River's Maryland shoreline, including the amusement park. The difference in size of acreage was due to the fact that the land Goldstein was giving up was zoned commercial.

Furthermore, the National Park Service agreed to suspend its civil suit for acquiring the property and to give Goldstein concession rights for an additional 414 acres in the Greenbelt Regional Park "for the purpose of providing amusement park and other concession type facilities consisting of youth hostels and other overnight accommodations."

National Park Service Director Hartzog in Thursday's testimony expressed enthusiasm over the proposed swap of land, saying the agreement was a very pleasant surprise. He said the Washington area long has needed inexpensive accommodations for young people visiting here.

However, Assistant Secretary Reed torpedoed the whole proposal in Friday's testimony. Making clear that he was speaking for the Interior Secretary, he said that the Department felt that Greenbelt Park is a vital recreational area close to densely populated urban areas. He added that Hartzog was not aware of this feeling toward Greenbelt.

Reed later told city manager Giese that he had been to Greenbelt Regional Park and found it to be a very fine park and urged the city to do everything possible to keep it that way. Greenbelt officials promised to carry out Reed's instructions.

Greenbelt Reaction

What probably got Greenbelt officials most irritated was the fact that there had been no consultations with Greenbelt and other local officials and no opportunity for citizens to be heard. The Greenbelt Regional Park is entirely within Greenbelt city limits and Greenbelt citizens have long considered the Regional Park as part of its protective "Green Belt."

"As far as I know," Mayor Pilski said, "no local official has been consulted in any way about this deal. Apparently no one in the Federal Government has any concern for what the people living near the Regional Park think of turning it into an amusement park except for Congressman Hogan."

Before the proposal was shot down, Pilski commented on the plans for developing the park: "I really know very little about it except that it will be done by an amusement park owner who obviously expects to make money on the deal. I understand it's to include such things as swimming pools, golf courses, and other recreational facilities. Such facilities might be all right if properly planned, but what other projects are proposed and where will they be located? Some of the worst traffic problems in the county exist around Greenbelt Park. Also, I would like to know what will happen to the existing picnic groves, nature trails and campgrounds."

Earlier, Pilski had announced plans for holding a public hearing and for enlisting the aid of mayors and councils of adjacent cities. He also expected to seek the cooperation of the county and the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission officials and to bring the matter to the attention of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments. Pilski said that COG has long been concerned over the lack of consideration of regional plans by the Federal Government in undertaking new projects.

SOCC Asks State To Hold

Hearing On Sewage Plant

The Greenbelt Save Our Community Committee (SOCC) has requested a state hearing on the proposed Greenbriar-Glen Ora sewage treatment plant. In a letter to Herbert Sachs, Director of the State Department of Water Resources, SOCC Chairman Thomas X. White asks for four state agencies — the Water Resources Department, the Health Department, the Environmental Health Administration, and the Natural Resources Department — to hold a joint hearing in the "impact area", the Greenbelt-College Park-Riverdale portion of Prince Georges County.

White said that last December the Water Resources Department recommended approval of the developer's application to discharge sewage effluent into a tributary of Indian Creek without holding a hearing. The letter states that, "We contend that the proposed sewage treatment plant might be in violation of Federal and State Water Quality standards, as well as county and municipal legal, environmental and health requirements."

Cited are the Potomac River Enforcement Conference; the Federal Rivers and Harbors Act; the U. S. Departments of Agriculture and the Interior, both of which agencies own land that the effluent would cross; State Health Department Solid Waste Control Division regulations pertaining to change in the water table of the two municipal sanitary landfills which the stream would pass; State Water Resources responsibility concerning increased downstream flow effects, and regarding erosion and siltation resulting from discharge of effluent into a presently unstable channel; and water pollution prohibitions of both the State of Maryland and the City of Greenbelt.

The Save Our Community Committee letter is co-signed by the Prince Georges Civic Federation, the Prince Georges Environment Coalition, the Prince Georges chapter of the Maryland Wilderness Association, the College Park Ecological Society, and the University of Maryland ECO environmental organization.

In a related action, the Greenbelt Save Our Community Committee announced that it is filing an appeal to the Circuit Court to review the action of the Prince Georges County Council in granting special bedroom exceptions for the Greenbriar Apartment subdivision. On January 12, 1972, the council approved the addition of 1868 rooms (including dens and family rooms) to the project, over and above the amount permitted for garden apartment (R-30) zoning.

NOW Open House

The National Organization for Women will be holding an Open House Wednesday, March 1, at 8 p.m. in the Springhill Lake Community Room in the Springhill Lake Shopping Center. Everyone is welcome. For further information call 474-2896.

"The Intermittent Stream"

The following description of the stream leading from the proposed Greenbriar treatment plant was prepared by county health officer Dr. Perry Stearns:

This little woodland creek originates in a marshy, wooded area approximately where the treatment plant is proposed to be placed. At this time of year there is a flow of water of about 1" depth and 3' in width, as it goes into the culvert under the Baltimore-Washington Expressway. The stream flows under both lanes of the expressway and turns north immediately beside the expressway. It passes north under the NASA exit and then turns north, northwest and passes under a tall, chain link fence into Greenbelt City property. The stream, at this point, is already partially polluted with a surface scum, some oil and various car parts. It is immediately beside the expressway, flows slowly or puddles, and could easily create an odor problem if further polluted.

In Greenbelt City property the stream flows slowly in a channel about 3' deep and 4' or 5' wide. The water at this point varies in depth from inches to 1'. It is widely separated from any Greenbelt homes, but is readily accessible from the old Greenbelt landfill. Children do occasionally play in it as is evidenced by two partially completed dams.

There is a complete lack of stream clearance, so that the channel is frequently blocked, resulting in ponding and sluggish flow. There is also evidence of occasional flooding up over the bank.

A Small Vocal Group

Mayor Pilski has charged in the News Review of February 17, that "never before has there been an issue before the City Council where a small but very vocal group has made such a concerted effort to obfuscate facts and technical data as has been the case in the consideration of the proposed Greenbriar Temporary Sewage Treatment Plant."

Simultaneously there appeared in the same issue the county health officer's statement of opposition to the sewage plant for the reason that he could not "with any intellectual or professional honesty assure you that a health hazard would not be created."

We welcome Dr. Stearns to the ranks of the "small but very vocal group" where he will join with many, many others of the same intellectual honesty.

We submit that this alleged minority does in fact represent a majority view of our fellow citizens.

It is also becoming evident that a grave concern is developing among our neighbors elsewhere in Prince Georges County.

For the record, let us examine who indeed has spoken for the citizens in opposition to the Greenbriar Sewage Treatment Plant or its impact on the community: Greenbelt Councilwoman Mrs. Rhea Cohen, County Executive William W. Gullett, Dr. Perry Stearns, County Councilmembers Ronald Reeder, and Lucille Potts, City Council of Riverdale, Board of Town Commissioners of Berwyn Heights, Maryland National Park and Planning Commission, Greenbelt Park & Recreation Advisory Board, Greenbelt News Review, Greenbelt Homes, Inc., Greenbelt Save Our Community Committee, Prince Georges County Civic Federation, Prince Georges Environmental Coalition, Prince Georges County Citizens for Charter, Citizens for a Better Environment, College Park Ecological Association, the many, many citizens who have testified before city and county councils, of whom we note particularly the following: G.H.I. Board Member Thomas X. White, Dr. Sidney Shifrin, Dr. Robert Mueller, Dr. Philipps Foster, Dr. James Harris, Dr. Werner Neupert, former Greenbelt City Manager, Charles McDonald, and over 1,000 citizens who have signed a still ongoing petition.

On the other hand, who is for the Greenbriar sewage treatment plant? Mr. Alan Kay, the developer; his attorneys and consultants; a gaggle of politicians and political appointees, and no more than a handful of citizens. This is indeed "a small but very vocal group."

As for the opposition to Greenbriar, it is not a minority — it is an avalanche and Mayor Pilski has made the mistake of standing in its path.

Greenbelt Unlucky

Greenbelt has three neighboring cities, Berwyn Heights, College Park, and Riverdale, whose city council members think enough of their constituents to protect them. Greenbelt isn't that lucky.

Our neighboring cities have gone on record opposing the temporary package sewage treatment plant, but Greenbelt has only one councilwoman, Rhea Cohen, who cares about us. We should ask why other cities have leaders who will lead them in the right direction, while Greenbelt has leaders who constantly lead them to disasters?

Compare Dr. Stearns' letter to the county council with Mr. Pilski's statement defending his and city council's actions. Dr. Stearns has fully confirmed that Mrs. Cohen has been right all along and that the city council majority, whose position has been restated by Mr. Pilski, was wrong, dead wrong.

Since our county health officer is now officially in agreement with the issues that have been previously raised by Mrs. Cohen and other concerned citizens, particularly Tom White, I would like to publicly ask Mr. Pilski if he is also accusing Dr. Stearns of being part of that "small but very vocal group . . . (whose) techniques have included character assassination, scare tactics, distortions, misinformation, and creating false or unrelated issues"?

Gail Chavrid

The People's Wishes

As a concerned and keen observer of our Greenbelt scene, I have been following the sewage plant controversy. I noticed all along that the city council has taken the position that its members were not technically qualified to evaluate the feasibility, health and ecological hazards of the proposed package treatment plant.

Why then did Council go through the elaborate rigamarole of hearing expert testimony if it were not capable of evaluating the testimony?

There is one thing that all members of council should be perfectly capable of doing. As politicians and as elected representatives, they should have an unquestioned competence, even a duty, to represent the wishes of the people.

This they failed to do. The expression of popular will on this issue was loud and clear. Regardless of the technicalities, we Greenbelters just do not want a sewage plant in our city.

As a citizen, I am disappointed that the city council did not, with the exception of Councilwoman Ms. Rhea Cohen, convey the wishes and fears of the people to county council and the State authorities.

The sewage plant may or not function according to expectations, but in this case, democracy malfunctioned.

Arbor Day Centennial

A 1972 Nursery Catalog reminds us that this year marks the Centennial Celebration of Arbor Day. Arbor Day is now almost universally observed on the last Friday of April in each year. With the great emphasis on improving our environment by planting trees and shrubs, it is not too early for interested groups and individuals to lay plans for tree planting ceremonies on Arbor Day, April 28. This is one project where some funds and time spent now can yield results to be enjoyed by the present generation and many generations to come. Perhaps the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Lions, the Women's Club, or the City can coordinate a massive effort to get voluntary donations, purchase trees and shrubs, and provide supervision in planting them properly. Trees and shrubs planted in 1972 will be well established to greet visitors to Greenbelt during the Nation's Bicentennial Celebration in 1976.

Stephen Polaschik

Check the Record

I would like to comment on a sentence in the report of the GHI Board meeting which appeared in last week's issue. In a paragraph concerned with GHI regulations, the last sentence read "Mr. Volk has consistently opposed enforcement of any regulation."

This is not true. Your reporter, Alexander Barnes, as a member of the GHI Audit Committee has access to the records necessary to verify this fact. He should do so.

Regulations are necessary, and are important to the smooth operation of an organization like GHI. I believe that regulations should be made as reasonable as possible; should give an individual maximum choice; and should be enforced. However, I do not believe in blind or uncritical enforcement of regulations without considering the merits of each individual case. As a result, I cast more dissenting votes on matters of regulations than most other board members, but this hardly warrants the statement that I have "consistently opposed enforcement of any regulation." This is nonsense.

CITY NOTES

An ornamental gate, originally purchased for the entrance to the Public Works Building, was installed recently by the Parks crew to close off the driveway to the Youth Center. The gate was found to be in the way at its intended location after a chain link fence was installed for greater security inside the brick wall screening the motor pool area.

The new gate replaces a chain which could be locked to block access by vehicular traffic to the Youth Center building.

Employees attached to the Public Works Dept.'s general crew maintained city vehicles last week while the city mechanic was off-duty. When snow warnings were reported, they installed snow removal equipment for the plowing operation.

The parks crew removed debris from roadsides.

Police were kept busy during the recent colder weather in shooing ice-skaters off the lake. City officials deemed the ice less than safe.

A member of the parks crew inventoried park and playground equipment—an annual procedure in city departments. The inventory also is used to determine maintenance needs.

A special crew worked one complete day, collecting worn-out major appliances, such as washing machines and refrigerators. Because the recycling plant was closed, these machines were stored temporarily at the municipal landfill site.

Automotive maintenance workers repaired doors, the back, and the packing hopper of a load packer—better known as a garbage truck.

Other employees patched streets and trimmed trees.
